

Student Ambassador Program and Requirements

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

Student Ambassadors are a select group of undergraduate and graduate students that serve as the official ambassadors for the College of Public Policy and Justice, and play an integral role in the recruitment and admissions process. Ambassadors are liaisons between their academic program in the College of Public Policy and Justice and prospective students, alumni, donors, faculty, and administrators.

The College of Public Policy and Justice Student Ambassadors are also responsible for assisting with various events including: Honors Day, Warhawk Weeks of Welcome, Recruiting, Orientation, and much more.

Ambassadors are chosen through a selection process that includes an application and interview.
